Profile

Teaching

- Close to a decade of university teaching, three institutions, two countries: instructor of record, teaching assistant, instructor trainer.
- Writing seminars, media-production studios, first-year interdisciplinary clusters; process-based assessment, inclusive rubrics, critical-making and generative-AI literacy.

Research

- Adivasi visual sovereignty in Jharkhand, from fieldwork into film, archive, and print; writing assessment under generative AI, arguing process over detection.
- Supported by over $105,000 in competitive fellowships, grants, and scholarships to date.

Practice and service

- For audiences outside the seminar room: documentary filmmaking and curation; a community media archive whose metadata encodes participant consent; counter-mapping against administrative land records.
- Continuous elected and appointed service over more than a decade, department committee to campus-wide board: conferences, editorial boards, search and professional-development committees.

Skills

- Making: documentary and ethnographic filmmaking (direction, cinematography, editing); film curation and programming; community archive design and metadata schema design (Omeka, WordPress).
- Analyzing: archival and qualitative research design; oral history; digital and counter-mapping; data visualization; ATLAS.ti; basic Python; generative-AI auditing.

Education

Ph.D. Candidate (ABD), Culture and Performance, Department of World Arts and Cultures, UCLA. Expected May 2027.

Department of World Arts and Cultures/Dance, School of Arts and Architecture.

Dissertation: Palimpsests of the Ocular: The Negotiated Sovereignty of Adivasi Media and Indigenous Archives in Jharkhand, India.

Committee: Aparna Sharma (Chair), David Shorter, Anurima Banerji, Michelle Caswell.

Graduate Certificates: Digital Humanities and Writing Pedagogy, UCLA; Oral Histories, Oral History Institute, UC Berkeley, 2023–2025.

M.Phil., Development Practice, Ambedkar University Delhi — 2015–2018.

M.A., Development Studies, Ambedkar University Delhi — 2012–2014.

Rank 1, School of Development Studies; CGPA 8.75.

B.A., History and Theater, University of Delhi — 2009–2012.

Teaching Experience

Sole instructor

Curriculum design, lead instruction, assessment, and grading. UCLA appointment title: Associate Instructor; Instructor of Record for summer courses.

Critical Media Literacy, UCLA — Spring 2025, Spring 2026.

Undergraduate Writing II seminar interrogating platform capitalism, algorithmic bias, and global streaming architectures, taught across two years.

Critical-making assignments translating theoretical frameworks into multimodal video essays and digital process portfolios.

Generative-AI literacy integrated into the curriculum through an iterative prompt log in which students audit large language models for data bias and representational gaps.

Spring 2025: 4.79 of 5 instructor rating, 4.89 of 5 seminar rating, 90.5 percent response; 84 percent of respondents reported much stronger analytic skills.

Video Skills and Techniques, UCLA — Summer 2025, Summer 2026, 2022–2023.

Media-production course in ethnographic filmmaking and the ethics of visual documentation, assessing both technical proficiency and narrative construction.

Fall 2023: 5.67 of 6 on welcoming environment and 5.60 on required work, 85.7 percent response. Summer 2026: 6.00 of 6 on encouragement of active engagement.

Rural Through Art, Literature, and Film, Ambedkar University Delhi — Fall 2020.

Interdisciplinary syllabus on Global South environmental histories and the visual representation of agrarian communities.

Taught remotely: recorded lectures, LMS modules, and asynchronous discussion alongside live sessions.

Teaching assistant

Section leadership, discussion facilitation, grading, and undergraduate mentorship.

Data Justice and Society, UCLA — 2024–2026.

Interdisciplinary cluster; four terms on data colonialism and algorithmic governance, mentoring first-generation undergraduate cohorts through year-long interdisciplinary research.

Taught by: Profs. Miriam Posner and Juliet Williams.

Section ratings of 8.88 and 8.75 of 9 (Winter 2025, 85 and 76 percent response); 8.63 and 8.25 of 9 (Winter 2026).

Documenting Culture, UCLA — Fall 2023.

Upper-division instruction in ethnographic fieldwork, visual recording technique, and community-engaged research ethics.

Taught by: Prof. Aparna Sharma.

Field Research Methods, UCLA — Winter 2023.

Taught by: Prof. Alex Flynn.

Ashoka University — 2017–2021.

Courses: Politics of Development; Political Ideologies; Anthropology of Work; Work and Labour; Social and Political Formations; Introduction to Indian Politics; Colonialism, Decolonisation, Nation and Postcolonial Politics; Comparative Politics; Great Books (2018).

Taught by: Profs. Vinay Sitapati, Sandipto Dasgupta, Deepak Mehta, Bann Seng Tan, and Aparna Vaidik.

Taught fully online, 2020–2021: Comparative Politics (Summer 2020, Prof. Bann Seng Tan); Politics of Development (Monsoon 2020); Anthropology of Work: Work and Labour (Monsoon 2020, Prof. Deepak Mehta); Indian Politics / The BJP before Modi (Spring 2021, Prof. Vinay Sitapati). Recorded lectures, LMS modules, and asynchronous discussion alongside live Zoom sessions and conferences.

Per-section evaluations: Indian Politics / The BJP before Modi (Spring 2021), 5.00, 5.00, 5.00, 5.00, and 4.96 of 5 across five sections, 56 respondents; Introduction to Indian Politics (Spring 2020), 4.98, 4.96, 4.90, 4.89; Work and Labour (Monsoon 2020), 4.95, 4.88, 4.85; Great Books (Monsoon 2018), 4.85, 4.85, 4.83.

Pedagogical consulting and instructor training

Humanities Technology Consultant, UCLA Humanities Division — 2026–2027.

Primary point of contact for instructional technology solutions and support for Humanities faculty and graduate students.

Lead consultant training sessions and deliver workshops for faculty and teaching assistants on instructional technology and digital humanities tools.

Support administration of faculty and graduate-student-led digital humanities projects, and contribute to Digital Humanities course instruction.

Teaching Assistant Consultant, UCLA Teaching and Learning Center and Undergraduate Education Initiatives — — 2026–2027.

Instructor for 495M and 495N, writing pedagogy courses for teaching assistants. Train and supervise teaching assistants for the general-education Cluster program, a year-long interdisciplinary sequence for first-year students.

Deliver preparation on section facilitation, transparent assessment, and coordination across faculty teams from multiple disciplines.

Teaching Assistant Consultant, UCLA Graduate Division — 2025–2026.

Instructor for two graduate pedagogy seminars, WL ARTS 495 and 496; 496 taught remotely. Design and instruction of the Graduate Teaching Assistant Seminar for incoming university instructors: transparent curriculum design, inclusive grading rubrics, classroom management, and strategies to support underrepresented student voices.

Process-based writing assessment as an alternative to algorithmic AI detection, drawing on the Graduate Certificate in Writing Pedagogy.

Collegium of University Teaching Fellows, UCLA — 2026–2027.

Selected fellow; year-long seminar in course design and undergraduate teaching, culminating in the design and instruction of an independent upper-division course.

Teaching Effectiveness and Evaluation

Formal observation: a Critical Media Literacy seminar module observed and commended by Dr. Peggy Davis (UCLA, Spring 2025), noting activity-based frameworks that dissolve the boundary between theory and practice.

Student evaluations: complete record across eleven UCLA courses and seven Ashoka courses, 2017–2026, roughly forty evaluated sections. Highest-scoring items throughout are welcoming environment, concern for student learning, and accessibility outside class. Full evaluation portfolio included in the teaching dossier.

Course design: syllabi built on a stated principle of symmetrical information sharing, with a linked contents page, a colour legend marking preparation, lab work, and deadlines on every weekly page, three-phase seminar structure, and feedforward revision of incremental work.
Instructor training: pedagogical training delivered to two cohorts of incoming teaching assistants at UCLA, across the Graduate Division seminar and the Interdisciplinary Clusters program.

Generative AI and Digital Pedagogy

Generative AI and writing assessment — ongoing.

Pedagogical research arguing for process-based assessment over algorithmic detection, addressing documented bias in AI detectors against multilingual writers, affective barriers to technical fluency, and metacognitive scaffolding as the skill generative systems cannot substitute for.

Presented as a roundtable contribution, “Process Over Policing: Algorithmic Ecologies and the Pedagogy of Critical Making,” USC Future of Writing Symposium (2026), on the panel Addressing AI in the Classroom: Perils and Opportunities.

Applied in Teaching Assistant Consultant training at UCLA and in classroom frameworks for affective accessibility and visual heuristics that teach structural argument rather than surface prose.

Graduate Certificate in Digital Humanities, UCLA — completed.

Coursework in digital methods, tools, and project design, applied to Digital Humanities course instruction and instructional-technology consulting.

Prompt-log audit assignment, Critical Media Literacy — 2025, 2026.

Iterative assignment sequence in which undergraduates audit large language models for data bias and representational gaps and document their own prompting decisions as assessable process.

Curator and Metadata Architect, Ways of Seeing — 2021–present.

Digital archive of Indigenous media on Omeka and WordPress; custom metadata schema encoding community access and consent conditions at the field level. Used as a teaching resource in courses on archives, media, and Indigeneity.
